

H. N. BRAILSFORD GIVES FOURTH DODGE LECTURE

Noted British Author Speaks on "Problem of the Far East" at Lampson Lyceum.

EXPLAINS CHINESE SITUATION

Russia Cited as Only Nation Sympathetic Toward China—Other Countries of World, Working for Own Interests, Have Antagonized Chinese.

In Lampson Lyceum last night, H. N. Brailsford, eminent British author, delivered the fourth of the series of Dodge Lectures on the Responsibilities of Citizenship. Mr. Brailsford's topic was "The Problem of the Far East" and he explained the Chinese situation, pointing out that Russia was the only one of the western countries that had any sympathy or influence in the East. Mr. Brailsford who was the editor of the New Leader, is widely known as a writer and lecturer.

The speaker called attention to the fact that the only interest the West had in the East was trade. Though the channels of trade we have forced our civilization upon them, building railroads and means of communication only for the sake of our own cause with no thought of unifying or organizing the Asiatic countries. Westerners have established clubs and hotels which are closed to all the natives of the country, and have erected a social barrier that excludes all those who are not of the white race. This attitude has aroused such antagonism that now the East is even rejecting the scientific and educational benefits of Western civilization.

Russia, however, has taken a fostering interest that has established an everlasting bond between her and the Asiatic countries. It was the help and encouragement of the Soviet government that made possible the Chinese revolution. To the higher class of Easterners, the Russian ideas have inspired a vision of nationalism, whereas to the factory workers and peasant class they have promised liberation and a transformation from the wretched standards and conditions of life under which they have been struggling.

The fact that the Conservative Party is now in power in China and is quelling the rebel cause and executing its leaders, said Mr. Brailsford, is only incidental as the problem of the rebel still remains unsolved and is soluble by no such easy means as execution.

When the culmination of the Panasiatic movement does come, the lecturer continued, it will probably be a bloody page in our history. Russia, however, separated from the East by no barrier either historical or geographical, will be the aid and guide of Asia in throwing off the yoke of Western oppression.

"ADVERTISING APRIL" TO BE PLAYED AT LITTLE THEATER

Five Performances Planned by New Haven Theater Guild for Farical Comedy Ridiculing Movie Publicity.

Advertising April, a farical comedy written by two Englishmen, will be presented by the New Haven Theater Guild at the Little Theater, Lincoln Street, Saturday afternoon and evening and Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week. Tickets are on sale at the Co-op, for undergraduates and graduate students.

The play is an amusing parody of the artificiality of the publicity agent and the movie actress in their attempts to keep themselves eternally before the public. April Mawne, cinema celebrity, is married to her press agent, who is active in devising publicity stunts for his wife. The struggle between her duty to her career and the desire for a peaceful life leads to many unusual and amusing situations.

That the play should be of interest to college students is shown by the fact that a greater number of undergraduates than usual are taking parts and aiding in its production. Five of the six male roles will be filled by Yale men.

The cast is announced as follows:

April Mawne, Louise Lord Coleman.

Edmund Hobart, her husband and press agent, Joseph Bernstein, 1928.

Mrs. Trimmer, her factotum, confidant and dresser, Julia Jacobs.

Poppy, her maid servant, Bessie Smernoff Horace, secretary to Hobart, Samuel Thorne, 1928.

Tom, a photographer, R. M. Calfee, 1930.

Potts, an employe, Fred Roelker, 1930.

Mervyn Jones, a modern young man, Thomas W. Copeland, 1928.

Rachel Shaw, a modern young woman, Dorothy Tomlinson.

A Princess, Edith E. Macqueen.

A Lady-in-Waiting, Edwina Hammond.

Lord Peveril, Nathan Denny.

Opportunities for the Study of Law at Oxford University Stressed by Former Rhodes Scholar

(Albert C. Jacobs, a former Rhodes Scholar from this country, member of the Law Faculty of Columbia University, and at present a lecturer at Oriel College, Oxford, has written the following article concerning the advantages of studying Law during the three year's period spent with a Rhodes Scholarship at the famous English university.)

For many years more of our American Rhodes Scholars at Oxford have studied law than any other subject. Added to this is the certain fact that they have achieved pre-eminent success in their legal work while at this great English university. Each year the list of those persons obtaining "First Class Honors" both in the Final Honor School of Jurisprudence and in the B. C. L. (Bachelor of Civil Law) contains a goodly number of American Rhodes Scholars. It can be stated without any doubt that the finest records made by our Rhodes Scholars in England have been made by those who have devoted themselves to the study of law.

In legal circles in this country the question is frequently asked, why should an American spend three years studying law at Oxford what possible advantage can he derive from the mastery of the English legal system; are not his three years wasted from the point of view of preparation and training for future practice in this country? To those who had been trained under the Oxford legal system, the answer to this question is simple. Oxford has much to offer the American Rhodes Scholar who expects to practice law in this country. The Oxford Law Faculty is a strong body, picked from the ablest legal minds in England, composed of persons of real scholarship and intellectual ability. And there is much to be said for the system of personal instruction and supervision, for the opportunity of a discussion of legal problems in very small groups rather than in large classes where the individual can be given but little attention. This factor is being recognized more and more by our leading American Law Schools.

One of the great advantages derived from the study of law under the Oxford system is the fine background that one acquires. In addition to the acquisition of the practical knowledge of case law and an excellent mastery of legal principles, one obtains a well-rounded legal education through the study of such subjects as English Legal History, Jurisprudence, and the science of Roman Law, matters which are essential to the perfect training of a lawyer, leading him to a better appreciation and administration of the principles of our law. In other words, Oxford provides in a splendid manner just that cultural background of the law that is painfully lacking in many of our schools.

A further question is often raised as to whether it is not necessary for an American Rhodes Scholar who has studied law at Oxford to complete his legal education with a year's work in one of our leading law schools. It may be stated with confidence that this is not at all necessary, though in some cases it may be advisable. The leading firms in New York City, where the competition for situations and positions is the keenest of any place in America, have a great many young American lawyers whose only legal education was that obtained at Oxford. These young American law-

COLLEGE COUNCIL MEETING

There will be a meeting of the College Student Council in the Tower Room of Harkness tonight at 7.

YALE QUINTET WILL CLASH WITH PENNSYLVANIA TEAM

Red and Blue Leads League But Was Downed by Elis in Previous Contest.

FRESHMEN MEET COLUMBIA

Both Teams Engage Powerful Opponents in Gym. Tonight—Schaaf of Penn Is League High Scorer With 104 Points, While Nassau of Yale Rates Fifth.

Backed by a cheering section composed of thirty of their alumni, the Pennsylvania Basketball Team will meet the Yale Quintet in the Gym. tonight at 8:30, in the Elis' last home game of the season. As Pennsylvania is now at the head of the League, the Red and Blue will enter the contest the favorites. In their first encounter of the season, however, Yale was victorious, upsetting the predictions of the sport critics. Besides this, Yale's recent victories over Dartmouth and Harvard, both strong teams, in which the Blue came from behind to win, show what the Eli team is capable of when it hits its stride.

Much interest in tonight's game has been displayed by Penn Alumni of New Haven and the vicinity, who have made arrangements for a block of thirty seats for a cheering section. Yale expects to have a cheer leader on the floor to organize the Blue supporters and give encouragement to the team. Since the outcome of this game will either decide the League Championship in favor of Pennsylvania or tie them with Princeton, the visitors can be depended on to do their best, and Coach Taylor expects a hard-fought game all the way through. This opinion is based on Pennsylvania's high standing in the League and the good work displayed by the Bulldogs in winning their last two games.

On the visitor's team is Schaaf, who at present leads the League in scoring, having (Continued on Page Five)

TRACK TEAM WILL MEET STRONG CORNELL SQUAD

Eli Athletes Journey to Ithaca on Friday to Compete in Dual Indoor Contest.

CORNELL IS NEW CHAMPION

Red and White Track Men Hold I. C. A. A. A. Title—Their Advantage in Weights Is Balanced by Capt. Carr, 1928 and Sturdy, 1929 in Pole Vault.

Thirty members of the Yale Track Team will leave for Ithaca Friday afternoon to take part in the annual dual meet with Cornell on Saturday. Cornell won the indoor I. C. A. A. A. Championship held in New York last week, but Yale's well balanced team should make the contest interesting. The Red and White team is especially strong in the weights, having captured four out of the five places in the 35-pound weight throw at the Intercollegiates; the Yale vaulters, led by Captain S. W. Carr, 1928, in their event should counteract the advantage Cornell enjoys in the weights. In last year's meet Yale was defeated by the score of 62 3-4 to 50 1-4.

The meet will be held on the flat board floor of the Cornell Armory, which will be a disadvantage for the University runners who have been working for some weeks on the dirt track in the Coxe Memorial Cage. To accustom the men to the conditions to be encountered at Ithaca, Coach Connors held a work-out yesterday on the Gymnasium floor. Special pits have been constructed in the Armory for the jumpers and vaulters.

The mile relay team which defeated Cornell in the Intercollegiates last week will be weakened by the absence of L. P. Ross, 1928. Captain Carr, who vaulted 14 feet 1 inch, setting a new world's record at the National A. A. U. meet in New York February 25, will make an attempt to better (Continued on Page Five)

1930 LEADS CLASS HOCKEY LEAGUE IN FINAL RANKING

Sophomores Lose Only One Game During Series—Post-Season University Practice Begins Today.

Winning by a large margin, the 1930 sextet heads the final ranking of the Interclass Hockey League, which ended when the last two games were played yesterday. The victorious players have been successful in all but one encounter, suffering defeat once at the hands of 1929. The Juniors were the runners-up, winning all but five of their games. University hockey practice will be held during the next two weeks.

In the past season each team, made up of ineligible and sub first-strong material, has played a total of twelve games. This year is the first in which class hockey has held a position of much importance in athletic activity. Last year the series was won by the 1929 sextet.

A game has been arranged between the Sophomore team and Roxbury for Thursday. As league winners, the players on the championship 1930 sextet are entitled to their numerals. Throughout the season the work of the 1930 forward line was consistently good, with Chappel, Gennison, and Rudd the team's outstanding players.

Post-season University practice begins today and will be held three times this week and four times during the next. The purpose of these workouts is to give Coach Wanamaker something of a start in preparing next year's team by getting the Freshmen and the returning University players working together.

The following is a summary of the class hockey season:

Team	Won	Lost	Average
1930	11	1	91.7
1929	7	5	58.3
1931	4	8	33.3
1928	2	10	16.7

OUTDOOR ROWING CANCELLED BECAUSE OF BAD WEATHER

Slight Change Made in University Boats by E. O. Leader—S. S. Quarrier, 1928S, Still on Injured List.

For the last week it has been impossible for the University and Freshman Crews to go out on the water because of the cold weather and high winds, which have made the water at the Harbor too rough for shells. Until the weather permits, Coaches Leader and Murphy will continue to hold practice in the tank. Coach Leader will not be able to move the crews to Derby for some time. At Derby intensive Spring training will begin in preparation for the races, the first race will be held in Philadelphia against Columbia and Pennsylvania on May 5.

On Derby Day May 19, the University and Freshman crews will meet Princeton and Cornell and the 150 pound University Crew will race Harvard and Princeton.

S. S. Quarrier, 1928S, is still out owing to injuries received several weeks ago. As he is a veteran with two years of University rowing behind him, his absence is much felt.

There has been a reseating of the University and Freshman Crews. They now stand as follows:

YALE MOUNTAINEERING CLUB WILL HOLD OPEN MEETING

At the first open meeting of the Yale Mountaineering Club, to be held in the main lecture room of William L. Harkness Hall, tonight at 8:30, Howard Palmer, 1905, president of the American Alpine Club, will give a talk on "Climbs in the Canadian Rockies and the Selkirks." The address will be illustrated with colored slides. Organized recently by a group of students and faculty members, the club has as its purpose the bringing together of members of the University interested in mountain climbing; besides the mutual exchange of experiences, information on this subject will be furnished at the meetings by various lecturers well versed in the sport. The club is modeled after similar organizations at Harvard and Oxford.

Mr. Palmer is recognized as one of the foremost mountain climbers in the United States. A pioneer in the Canadian Rockies region, he has made numerous difficult first ascensions. The meeting will be entirely informal, and students and members of the Faculty interested in the subject of the talk and the organization are invited to attend. The present officers of the club are: President, R. S. Whitney, 1928; Vice President, R. W. Holt, 1928; Secretary, S. H. Hart, 1929.

PRES. LOWELL ADDRESSES PHI BETA KAPPA SOCIETY

"Dean of American Education" Emphasizes Scholastic Stand at Banquet.

MANY NOTED MEN PRESENT

Pres. Angell and Emeritus Pres. Hadley Are Guests at Dinner for Newly-Elected Members of Honorary Society—Latin Oration Given by Prof. Hendrickson.

Two college presidents and a president emeritus were seated at the speakers' table as guests of the Phi Beta Kappa Society at its annual dinner held in the Hotel Taft last night. President Abbott Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard University, the chief speaker of the evening, gave the last address, which stressed fundamentally the fact that the scholastic record made in college corresponded to a high degree with that made in later life. Professor Chauncey B. Tinker, '99, as toastmaster, introduced both President Angell and Arthur T. Hadley, '76, former President of the University. R. W. Huntington, Jr., 1928, as head of the society, spoke on "Scholarship and Humanism." The "charge" was delivered to the candidates by Professor G. L. Hendrickson.

President Lowell, in addressing the representative body of Yale University's intellectual life, said that it seemed as if he were visiting a rich relation. The "dean of American education," as he was so introduced by Professor Chauncey B. Tinker, expressed the opinion that "Scholarship in college is the measure of ability and a prognostication of the future." During the war, for example, the Germans had counted upon America's slowness in selecting sufficient officers for war, in as much as the German's system of choosing from the elite did not exist in this country. However, this was adequately compensated for by the students of the Universities. Concluding from statistics of past years concerning scholars' work in the professional schools, he cited the fact that among the numerous graduates of Yale who have studied in recent years at the Harvard Law School, those who had received the highest ranking in the University led their classmates in scholastic honors in professional school. This same comparative status is revealed in the records of former scholars who held positions in the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Yale's greatest men of letters and of science were for the most part Phi Beta Kappa men, in fine, President Lowell stated that those who excel in studies are best fitted for the great mission of life.

President Angell, who delivered the first address on the program, stated that he had just completed an exceedingly interesting study of various statistics concerning the newly elected members of Phi Beta Kappa. One of the facts which this research brought to light was that although the ratio of students coming from preparatory schools to those who received their preliminary training in public high schools was two to one, approximately 50 per cent of those undergraduates honored by election to this society were the products of public high school training. Further research showed that of the fifty-three men who received this honor, twenty-one were of direct Yale stock—that is, their fathers were graduates of this University—and eight of these fathers were also members of Phi Beta Kappa. Investigating the representation from schools, it was found that one school which contributed six members with the exception of the rest of the schools were evenly represented.

WHY FRESHMAN COMMONS?

Every fall the members of the incoming Freshman Class are faced with a proposition which embodies the same principles from which they thought they had freed themselves on leaving their preparatory schools. The University Dining Hall, fortified by the imposing colonnade facing Blount Avenue, looms up forcefully on a Freshman's advent to the University as the symbol of the element of compulsion, a thing generally associated with his school days and not with a university. He rebels against the situation at first, gradually accepts it as a necessary evil, and finally with a certain amount of resignation reconciles himself to the prospect of eating there during his first year.

Aside from the argument that Commons makes for Class unity, practically a myth in contemporary Yale, there appears to be no reason for the present maintenance of the institution. What more pleasing alternative could be offered the powers that be than a University cafeteria open to all those officially connected with Yale and occupying the entire length of the Dining Hall?—an arrangement which appears more practical and desirable in many ways.

The contention that Class friendships bloom and mature at the small Commons tables is erroneous. There may be a number of casual introductions and commonplace pleasantries which take place at each meal, but the fact remains that a Freshman will invariably wait for his friends or make it a point to sit with them at every possible opportunity.

Then again the element of sociability cannot be passed lightly aside. In the present cafeteria and undoubtedly in the proposed one the eating of one's meals would be more leisurely and the patron would be afforded an opportunity to meet his professors outside of the formality of the classroom. Co-incident with this seemingly desirable change is the emphatic statement by the superintendent of Commons that a Freshman's diet under the cafeteria system would not be materially dissipated, inasmuch as the present regime of self-service shows that the majority of upper-classmen do not specialize in desserts, but choose a well-balanced diet for themselves. This statement is qualified by a firm belief that the Yale Freshman has enough judgment to know what to select.

The cost of food to the Freshman, were the Commons changed into a cafeteria, would depend largely on his enthusiasm. The supplemental alterations necessitated to accommodate the increased number of self-servers would be inconsequential; and the Commons staff would be only slightly affected, according to good authority.

There is much to be said both for and against the present system of Freshman eating, but its disadvantages palpably outweigh its merits. If constructive opinion and action can be so coalesced as to evolve a more effective and desirable institution, a long step toward a more pleasant first year in New Haven will have been taken.

Pres. Lowell Addresses
Phi Beta Kappa Society

honor of being elected to both Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi, President Angell congratulated them particularly for their ability in combining scientific research with the more purely humanistic work of the older society. He commented on the extraordinarily high position of this scientific equivalent of Phi Beta Kappa and expressed his high appreciation of its work.

With reference to the recently completed endowment fund, President Angell disclosed the fact that Yale men in every part of the world were instrumental in bringing it to its successful completion. Graduates in every nation of the world had united in the common cause.

In concluding, President Angell stated that in his opinion, the present criticism of the undergraduate was greatly exaggerated. Statistics showed that the men entering college at the present time were much better prepared and did much better work in college than their predecessors. He pointed out that Yale's responsibility was to interpret scholarship and learning to the people as a whole in order to stimulate and encourage progress and improvements along lines in the nations of the world. With this fact before him, he took great pleasure in welcoming into this society such a worthy group of successors to the members of Phi Beta Kappa.

The next speaker was Robert W. Huntington, Jr., 1928, the president of the undergraduate society, who took for his subject "Scholarship and Humanism." He dealt particularly with the relation of scholars and scholarship to the field of art. In this connection he brought out the fact that the true scholar was a devoted servant of all branches of art and that this was the real purpose of scholarship. Humanism is a branch of scholarship which introduces a new creative era a veritable renaissance. He suggested that inasmuch as a rediscovery of Vergil had given birth to great poets, what might not a new interest in the true Shakespeare give to the world. Shakespeare, as he is known today, is buried under a mass of facts and statistics which obscure his real beauty for the world. The scholar, in Huntington's opinion, is of more value to a young artist than any amount of technical discussion and explanation.

Arthur T. Hadley, former president of the University, was called upon to speak extemporaneously. He told about the tremendous competition in former years for Phi Beta Kappa, which was the center of thought for students and graduates. In fact, he stated that the Phi Beta Kappa men of that time would share honors with the football captain or News Chairman of today. He likewise declared that there was now a true rejuvenescence of the Phi Beta Kappa society.

Professor G. L. Hendrickson was the last speaker of the evening before President Lowell, and his "Salvete Initiatii," delivered in eloquent Latin, was so clearly and simply expressed that its meaning was understood by the audience. It was extremely effective, in that it gave in a true Ciceronian style a resume of Yale-Harvard relations for the last 200 years, not omitting the football of the present day. To the candidates about to be initiated into the society, Prof. Hendrickson delivered the "charge" as their final ceremonial.

This Companionate Marriage

Results of a questionnaire sent to Harvard and Radcliffe undergraduates regarding companionate marriage reveal the fact that at the present time two Harvard men have entered into this new type of union and one Radcliffe girl. Of the answers received during the first twenty-four hours from Harvard, 77 were in favor and 76 against, while twenty-two Radcliffe girls signified their approval of such a marriage.

University Club Sextet Reinforced

In its two game series with Moncton, N.B., the University Club of Boston will be considerably strengthened by the acquisition of two well-known college stars. Harvard's championship sextet will furnish Morrill, their brilliant goalie, while Dartmouth who downed the Crimson in their only game with Harvard this season is sending Myles Lane, their captain, to strengthen the club team's defense.

It has been computed by the Federal Forest Service that there are but fifteen grizzly bears extant in the State of Washington.

FRESHMAN SWIMMING TEAM WILL OPPOSE HOTCHKISS

In a meet to be held in the Carnegie Pool at 4 this afternoon, the Freshman Swimming Team will meet Hotchkiss. While little is known about the strength of the visiting team, it recently defeated Pawling and should present no weak opposition to the Freshmen. The 1931 Team has had a successful season having won from all its opponents except the Rutgers Freshmen, who defeated it last Wednesday by a score of 42 to 20.

The probable line-up of the Freshmen will be as follows:

50-yard dash—W. M. Swoope, J. C. Houston, Jr.

220-yard swim—D. H. Clement.

Dive—B. C. Smith, W. J. Oldfield.

150-yard back stroke—J. B. Lounsbury,

E. B. Paine.

200-yard breast stroke—J. G. Campbell.

100-yard dash—C. G. Zug, Jr., R. M. Owen, Jr.

200-yard relay race—R. V. Clark, D. H. Clement, H. Lincoln, F. W. Loeser.

Eminent English Pianist
To Give Recital Tonight

5 Ondine Ravel
6 Alborad a del graciioso Ravel

There are few women pianists who have won as high reputations as Miss Hess, whose prestige and fame are equally great in England and America. She has appeared in concerts in this country for several seasons and is not unknown to New Haven audiences, as she has already given recitals in Sprague Hall on two previous occasions. Her art is of the finest quality, for a sensitive imagination, an advanced technique and a compelling emotion contribute to a performance that is remarkable from every point of view.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained at Sprague Hall. Reserved seats are sold at $1.00 and $1.50.

Thirty Years Ago Today

An exhortatory editorial in the News read as follows: "The call for entries for the handicap chess tournament has not been responded to as might have been expected. The tournament about to be held begins another year's work of chess at Yale, upon which the success of Yale in coming tournaments will greatly depend, and it is only by persistent and preserving work that we can hope to raise our chess standard and do creditable work in these tournaments. All men who are interested in this movement are urged to make it known immediately and those of inexperience will be given will be given liberal handicaps."

The subject for debate at the meeting of the Kent Club was "Resolved, That the Law School Baseball Team should take a trip South."

It was announced in the News that the Faculty had forbidden the annual Sophomore-Freshman baseball game. "This action was taken in regard to last year's Freshman class, nominally because of disorder at the Prom. concert but actually on account of the general disorder and danger incident to the game, which has been increasing each year."

There were eighteen men on the University and twenty-six on the Freshman crew squads.

The University hockey sextet opposed Columbia in the Clermont Rink, Brooklyn. The result was a tie at 0-0.

Malley Neely and Co. advertised Conan Doyle's latest and most interesting novel, A Dessert Drama. An excerpt from the book was quoted:

"Belmont picked up the dead man's Martini and ammunition pouch."

"Only three more rounds, Cochrane" said he with the little brass cylinders upon the palm of his hand. "We've let them shoot too soon and too often. We should have waited for the rush."

"You're a famous shot, Belmont," cried the Colonel. "I've heard of you as one of the cracks. Don't you think you could pick off their leader?"

set a new record of 104 points. Representing Yale, L. E. Nassau, 1930, is now fifth highest scorer in the League, while P. K. Fodder, 1929, is seventh.

Previous to the University game, the Freshmen will meet the Columbia 1931 Team at 7. The visitors have one of the strongest teams they have ever had and rolled up the impressive total of 60 points against the Dartmouth Freshmen's 29.

The University line-up:

Yale	Pennsylvania
Ward (Capt.) 1.f.	1.f., Lubley
Nassau, r.f.	r.f., Matthews
Bryant, c.	c., Chapman
Cook, l.g.	l.g., Schaaf
Nanry, r.g.	r.g., Lazar

 The Freshmen will start as follows:

1931	Columbia 1931
Poole, 1.f.	1.f., Obey
Horwitz, r.f.	r.f., Hackett
Linehan (Capt.) c.	c., Gregory
Taylor, l.g.	l.g., D. Smith

this mark Saturday. For Yale much is expected from F. H. Sturdy, 1929, in the pole vault, F. K. Sheldon, 1929S, in the hurdles, J. A. Brandenburg, 1929S, in the broad jump and G. V. Wolf, 1930, in the high jump.

Among the best men on the Cornell team are: Wright, Warden, and Cohen, who finished first, second and third in the 35-pound weight event in the Intercollegiates; Levy, who was second in the shot put; Spellman, Benson and Carruthers who have been consistent point winners in the sprints, two mile run and hurdles, respectively.

Study of Law at Oxford University Stressed by Former Rhodes Scholar

yers have done extremely well in this country, and their success is a great credit to the Oxford Law School.

Anyone who is interested either in teaching or in practicing law and who has the rare privilege of going to Oxford, should not miss this opportunity of acquiring something that will be of great service to him throughout his entire career, namely, the cultural and scholarly approach and understanding of the law which is too frequently lacking in our present lawyers. This he can gain through the study of a system of law which is closely akin to ours, based upon the same fundamental conceptions, but which is centuries older, and yet as a system is years ahead of our own.
